Charity Hospital

Steeped in Louisiana history, Charity hospital embraces an intriguing and colorful past, having survived economic hardships, natural disasters, and some of the worst political and patronage problems in the country.

Its charter dates back to January 1736, when Jean Louis, a French sailor, bequeathed his estate to the founding and furnishing of Charity Hospital in early French Colonial Louisiana. This makes it the oldest continually operating hospital in what is now United States territory (Bellevue Hospital in New York City was established two months later.)

Within ten years, it became necessary to build a new building to replace the over-crowded original structure. The new hospital was conveniently located between a canal, for receiving patients and supplies, and a cemetery, for burying the deceased.

In 1779, a great hurricane wreaked havoc on New Orleans, reducing Charity to ruins. Rebuilt, Charity fell prey to a kitchen fire in 1809, which burned the entire hospital to the ground. The indigent sick were temporarily housed in the Cabildo until the hospital could be restored. Five years after the fire, a new hospital was completed with the facilities "vast and commodious, capable of caring for 120 patients."

A group of citizens visiting Charity in 1818 were horrified by the conditions of the patients, the hospital's filthiness, and the total inadequacy of the attendants. They complained to the governor and Hospital administration and it became clear new facilities were again needed. In 1833, the fourth version of Charity was completed at a cost of $149,570. With the arrival of the Daughters of Charity and the Medical College of Louisiana, the overall medical atmosphere in New Orleans was excellent. At that time, the entire medical complex was very likely among the best of its kind in the world.

Charity weathered the Civil War, and prospered during the remainder of the Eighteenth Century. By 1900, the hospital probably contained almost 2,000 beds, while other hospitals in the city had perhaps only 150 beds combined.

Charity Hospital—1920

As World War I came to a close, a new war was just beginning between the School of Medicine and Hospital Administrators. The worst was yet to come under Huey P. Long's administration. In 1930, Long abruptly dismissed Dr. Alton Ochsner allegedly because of Ochsner's complaints about political constraints placed on his attempts to build a first-rate surgery department at Tulane. This feud, along with the failure of Tulane to award Long the law degree that he desired played a role in the establishment of the LSU Medical School.

It had been clear for many years that the 100-year-old Charity Hospital building again needed to be replaced. Following Long's assassination in 1933, Federal funds became available to build the current structure, completed on June 27, 1939.

After World War II, problems involving interrelationships developed not only for Charity, but also for the medical schools. The Ochsner Clinic emerged as a large medical institution, employing many of Tulane's faculty and developing its own residency training programs. With the rise of LSU Medical School, the old controversies between Tulane and Charity were now simply extended to it as well.

In the late 1950's, many sweeping changes were considered for Charity and its associated schools. In the 1960's, the ugly matter of segregation was dealt with and the "colored" and "white" wards that were on separate sides of the hospital were eliminated.

By the late 1960's, financial problems for the Hospital and both schools were paramount. Woefully inadequate financing continued, however, and the hospital has lost its accreditation on several occasions since 1975. This threatens not only Charity, but both medical schools and the entire medical education process.

While plans for problem solving are being developed, the question remains, "Is Charity an anachronism, or can it be properly funded and equipped to provide excellent care and teaching opportunities as it has in the past?" As of the end of 1992, the future of Charity Hospital remains very much in doubt. The state has plans to renovate the newly purchased hospital, Hotel Dieu, but there are no immediate plans to renovate the current structure we refer to as Charity Hospital.

Tulane Medical School

The Tulane University School of Medicine began as the Medical College of Louisiana in September 1834, as three brash young physicians initiated medical education in Louisiana. Establishment of the school was met with considerable opposition from the Creoles, whose European ideas concerning medical education stressed academics well-grounded in the Latin and Greek classics. Nonetheless, when the Medical College opened its doors in January 1835, it became the first medical school in the Deep South, and the fifteenth in the country.

There were only eleven students in the first class. Tuition, fees, room, and board came to less than four hundred dollars a year. The first few years were difficult ones as deans seemed to come and go, and faculty changed as frequently. By 1843, however, there were over one hundred students. Even then, the student body came from as far away as Pennsylvania and Connecticut, which would have been weeks away. They also came from closer states, such as Alabama and Mississippi.

Medical school in those days was quite different than it is today. Only eight months of lectures were required to obtain an M.D. The school year was four months long. The same seven courses were repeated over again the second year. The curriculum consisted of courses in Anatomy and Physiology, Chemistry, Materiae Medica, Principles and Practice of Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics, and the diseases of women and children. Professors received no salary, but were compensated instead by selling tickets to their lectures to the medical students. Instruction was almost wholly didactic, with practical instruction in Anatomy only. The lectures were delivered to the entire student body assembled in a large room or amphitheater. Clinical subjects were taught in the same manner. Indeed, the unmotivated students would often graduate without ever having attended a delivery, observed an operation or even examined a patient, as these were to be learned as an apprentice to a physician.

The Civil War brought a halt to all formal medical training in 1862. The Medical College of Louisiana was fortunate to find financial security in the form of Paul Tulane, a wealthy New Orleans merchant, who bequeathed $1,250,000 to provide for a new university. In 1884, the various departments of the University of Louisiana were placed under the aegis of the new institution, Tulane University of Louisiana.

In 1910, Abraham Flexner published his report of the ranking and classification of medical schools, with Tulane ranked as one of the top three Southern institutions. At that time, Tulane's prominent faculty included the great Dr. Rudolph Matas, a vascular surgeon and Isadore Dyer, a noted dermatologist who was instrumental in the development of the leprosarium in Carrville, Louisiana.

In 1913, Tulane boasted a School of Pharmacy, School of Dentistry, School of Medicine, and Graduate School of Medicine (only the latter two remain today.)

The Tulane Medical Center was organized in 1969 to broaden Tulane's commitment to medical education, research, and patient care. The Tulane Medical Center Hospital and Clinic, the first such university hospital in Louisiana, was dedicated in October 1976. This 300-bed hospital has enabled Tulane to consolidate a wide range of services in a tertiary care environment and it has become a major referral center for the region.

Since its founding 157 years ago as the Medical College of Louisiana, the Tulane University School of Medicine has undergone many changes: the most recent of which has been the addition of a new hospital wing, and soon to be added is the Environmental Health research building. Several buildings have come and gone, and while many different students and faculty members have occupied them, so have federal troops during the Civil War. Though Tulane originally catered to those students mainly from the South, it now attracts students from all parts of the United States. From its meager beginnings in 1834, the Tulane University School of Medicine has gone on to confer over 12,000 medical degrees. Paul Tulane would certainly be proud of the many physicians who have graduated from the university bearing his name.

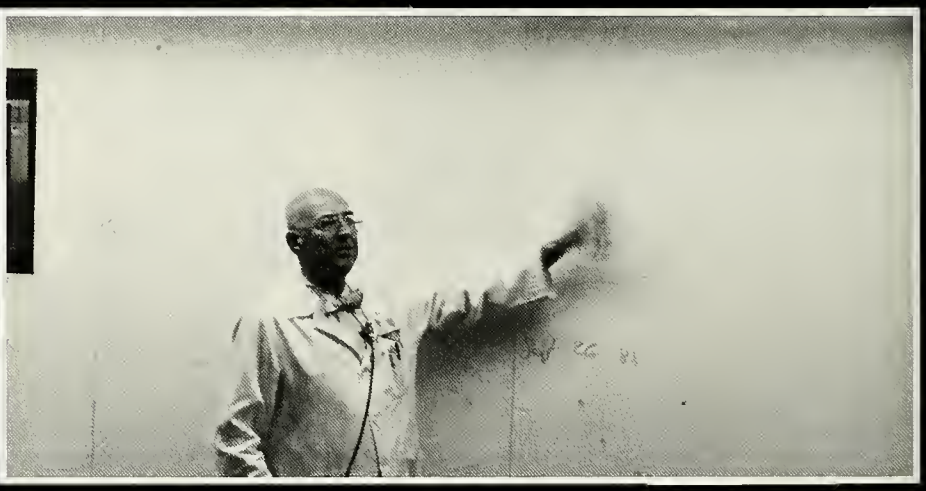
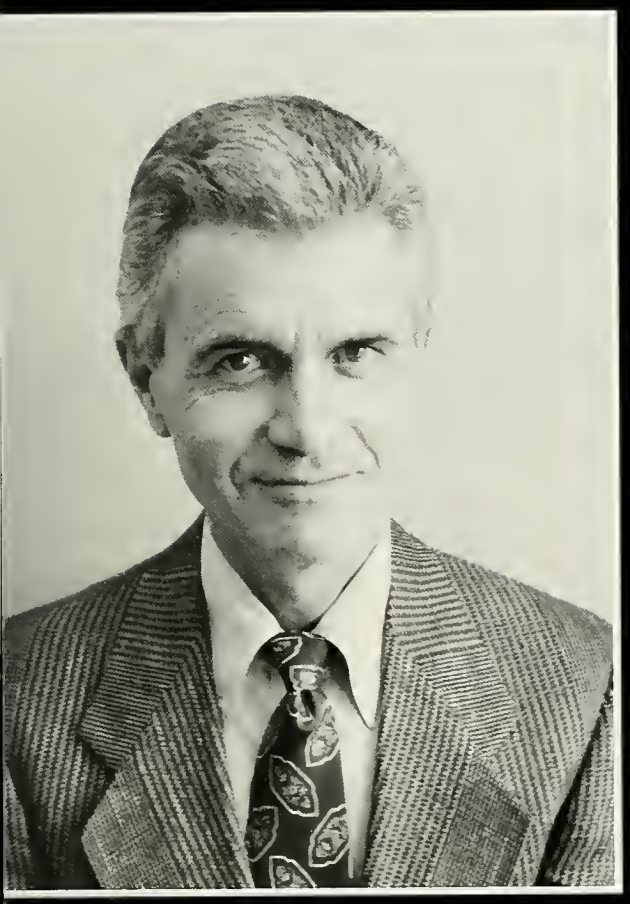
Dedicated Faculty

Before we begin with the pages dedicated to the senior class, we would like to dedicate this page to four professors whose knowledge, guidance, and inspiration were unique in our education at Tulane. Our class has been fortunate to have learned from the best and our four departing faculty are the best in their respective fields: C. Thorpe Ray, M.D., is a legend who has taught thousands of students the art of auscultation throughout his distinguished career. Richard Rieck, M.D., imparted on us his love for neuroscience, histology, anatomy, and all things medical. Leon Walker, Ph.D., is an anatomist famous not only for his infinite knowledge of the human body but his easy going, cigarette smoking character. Pat Walker, M.D., a pathologist extraordinnaire, was known for his love of teaching and for his Walker's rules of survival. Thanks to all of you for sharing your knowledge and wisdom with us.



Class Sponsors



Our class has chosen two very special faculty members to be class sponsors, Dr. Paul Rodenhauser and Dr. Alan Grogono. Although these two men have different backgrounds, different personalities, different specialties, and even come from different countries they share a common love of teaching and an excellent rapport with students.

Dr. Paul Rodenhauser, Professor of Psychiatry, Director of Medical Student Education, Assistant Dean of Admissions and Curriculum Management, and Adjunct Professor in the Dept. of Health Systems Management has been at Tulane for only two years. Reflective of his dedication to teaching, he is the recipient of the 1992 Owl Club Award for Outstanding Teaching as well as the 1992 Psych. Resident Award for Excellence in Teaching. His concern for students takes many forms: involvement in the Phoenix Society, advisor, confidant, Class of '93 Talent Show judge, and host to numerous student receptions including our Match Day celebration. Thanks Dr. Rodenhauser.

Dr. Alan Grogono, Chairman and Merryl and Sam Israel, Jr. Professor of Anesthesiology is well know for his out-going personality and wit, abilities which served him well as co-emcee of the Class of '93 sponsored Talent Shows. A willing and enthusiastic participant in many student activities (especially wine and cheese parties) he is also involved behind the scenes in the University Senate. In front of the classroom he is an engaging and entertaining lecturer. Greg, as he is known to many, hosted our graduation week pool party at his home. Dr. Grogono's door is always open to students and we thank him for the never ending cheerfulness and wit.

BUDS-N-SUDS!

Coffee Stops And Coffee Spots

New Orleans entertains its tourist in its many coffee houses, famous for their unique blends of exotic beans and the flavor of chicory. The medical students, however, soon discover that coffee is much more than a cultural and social drink. Soon after the first exam the medical student needs a constant supply of caffeine to stay awake during the many long nights of endless study. As T-3's, coffee helps the weary student through long nights on call, those "forever" morning rounds, "interesting" conferences, and post-call evenings. After many days like these, the med student learns of the numerous places to study, stay awake, and even pawn a free cup of coffee. Here are a few of our favorite coffee houses and various other locations that we found to help us stay awake through four years of medical school.

The Class Of 1993

There are 151 students in the graduating class of 1993. The diversity of our class can be attributed to the wizardry of the late Dr. Newman. He took the applications of more than 4,000 ambitious men and women and whittled them down to 151 - our class. We have the cultural diversity of 31 different states and territories as well as one foreign country. Approximately one-third (31%) of our class call California home, 17% Louisiana, 6% Florida, and 5% for New Jersey and New York. Twenty seven students in our class received their undergraduate education from the University of California school systems. Other universities sending students in bulk were Tulane with twelve, Notre Dame with six, and L.S.U. with five. For some, medical school was not their first stop in an institution of higher learning. Ten had received master degrees, three had obtained Ph.D.'s, and one had received a J.D. It is this diversity amongst our peers that has created a class bound by mutual respect, the truly unique Class of 1993.

I would like to dedicate this page to those special people who have showered me with their love, friendship, guidance and support both throughout medical school and all of my life. There is no language in my lungs to adequately express my love and appreciation for all they have done, but if my guess is correct, they probably already know. I would especially like to thank Robert L. Hernandez Jr. and his wonderful wife Anna, Phil and Estelle deVerges, Randy L. Savell and family, Steve A. Fellow Classmates:

In this, my final letter to y'all, I would like to thank you for the honor of allowing me to represent our class during our four years at Tulane. We've shared many moments together and established friendships that will last forever. As we move into the next stage of our training, I wish you well and hope you take fond memories of being a part of the Class of 1993!

Enrique

T-1: 2x2's And Tags, Cycles And Slides

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. These immortal words best serve as a summation of our first year of classes. The volume of information presented was enormous and seemingly insurmountable. However, the music, cuisine and culture of New Orleans provided much needed stress relief.

The majority of our class hailed from the "Golden State", but all four geographic corners of the country were represented. Regardless of our background, the Class of 1993 became a cohesive unit. It is amazing how fear of the "Head and Neck practical", countless runs to PJ's, sharing cheese fries at Cooter's and surviving "Bloody October" can bring a totally separate group of individuals together. Our class unity became notorious and soon we also became known as the best and brightest in many years. A helpful hand could always be found and an open ear always lent.

This year marked the end of the "Walker Era" in Gross Anatomy and yet the beginning of new careers for the members of the Class of '93. Lighter moments on the rooftops of the Warehouse District, the Weber Open and the 1990 Cadaver Ball with the theme 'Anatomy Night Live' will not soon be forgotten.

We were welcomed back from the holidays with a bucket of brains and the unlikely duo of Weber-Mascorro. Their jokes lacked humor but we laughed all the same. Laughing is perhaps how we ended this year - much relieved. Our hard work had paid off. The many new friends we made would no doubt see us through our 2nd year of textbooks.

Words cannot express my gratitude
The warmth that I feel
For the support given me so long
From my family and friends across the miles,
Or for so many lessons in life
From my teachers and patients,
And to those friends close by, soon to be scattered
My nest or just a hug is only a phone call away.

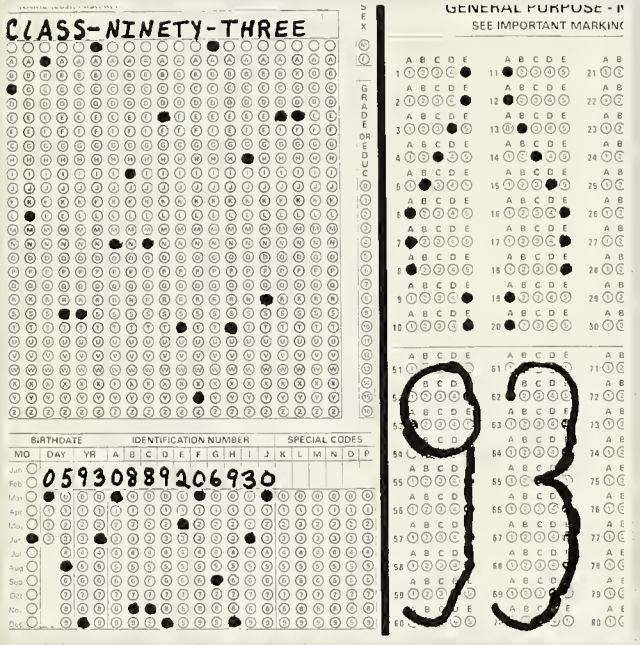
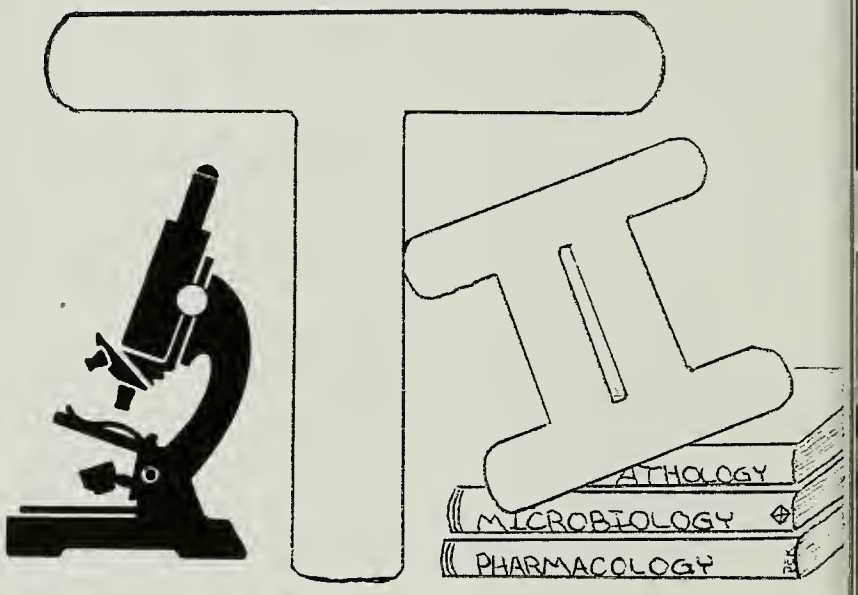
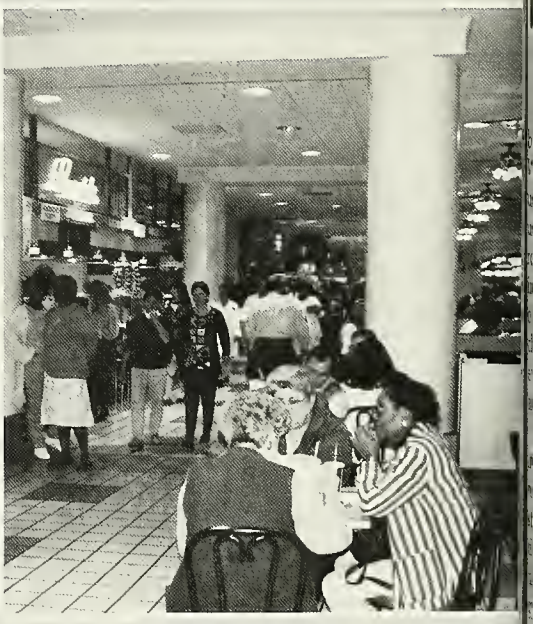
T-2: Inspection, Palpation, Percussion And Auscultation

A typical day in T-2 lab.







Talent Show '91: Sing me something Doc . . .

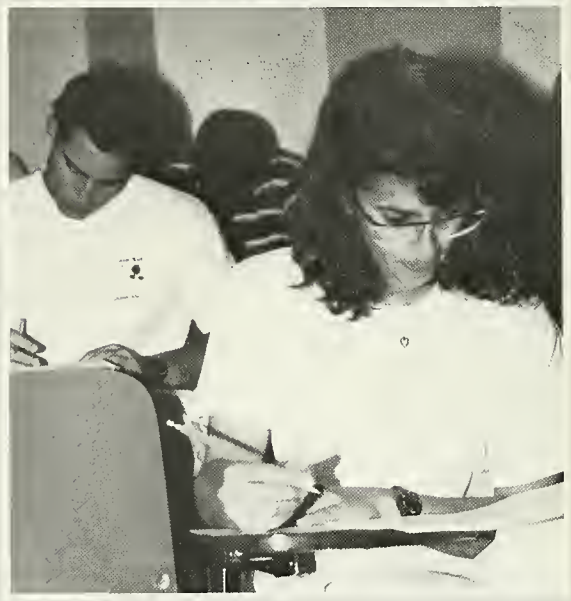
Lecture notes and long lunches

A rigorous second year day.

Three's Company

Christmas Cheer at the Columns Hotel

The crawfish aren't ready yet . . . ?



Hmmm . . . Cooters or AT2's??

The T-2 year began with none of the fanfare of the first year, ut it would turn out to be a great one nonetheless. Another Dr. Valker, this one shorter but with just as much personality, taught s how and why people actually got sick. Dean Fulginiti brought s into the twentieth century by converting the third floor sleep oom into computer labs, but we realized nothing was more nportant than a good old fashioned note service. It allowed some f us to take correspondence course medicine, only showing up to heck our mailboxes. Others persisted with perfect attendance ven at what we thought at the time was way too early . . . 8:00 m.

Tests were still an ever present fact of life every Monday, and ncorrectly filled out Scranton sheets became everyone's worst ightmare. One academic highlight was the tart of Physical Diagnosis and seeing pa- ients, both real and "simulated" for the first ime. Dr. Ray's room full of stethoscopes, ynecologic teaching associates, and the ervousness of our first history and physical re memories we will carry with us forever. While many of us did not socialize in the classroom, there was always a "prescription for what ale'd you" after a test at Joe's Bar. There were also several other functions that kept the Class of 1993 as close knit as ever. The Columns Hotel Christmas Party, the Talent Show, and the Crawfish Boil on the levee were just a few. The class revealed its generosity by donating funds to the Pediatric wards at Charity, and we flexed our muscle by refusing to take the National Boards.

There were also events that will be remembered outside the halls of 1430 Tulane Avenue. Charity Hospital was renamed the Medical Center of Louisiana, although no one really expected anything to change. The governor's race between Edwards and Duke proved to gain national prominence and was the focus of many medical student discussions. All in all it turned out to be a memorable year. The camaraderie and teamwork of our class would serve us well in the grueling days and nights of the third year yet to come . . .

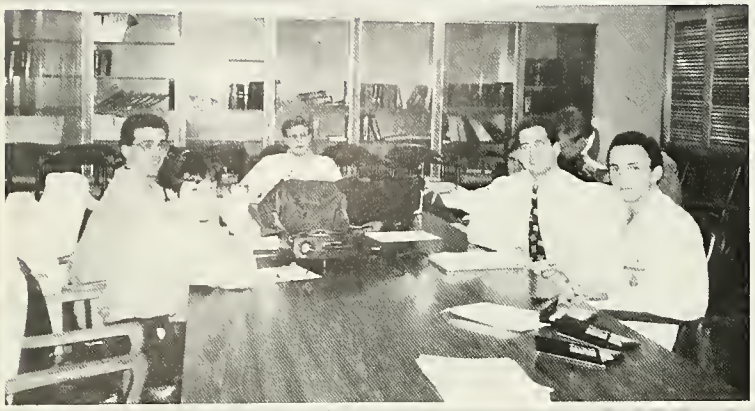
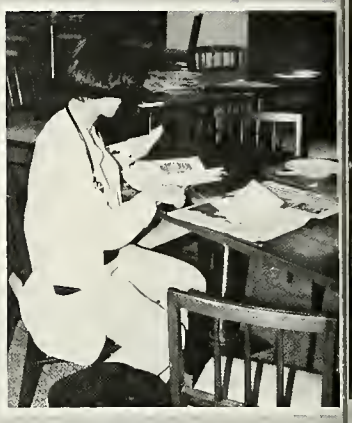
T-3: Full Time Phlebotomy, 444-4444 . . .



Socialized Medicine

Spring Class Picnic



T-3 Study Lounge

Ah, at last we were beginning to do what we had dreamed of doing for most of our lives. We were finally in the hospital working with patients and attempting to synthesize two years of crammed physiology, pathology, and everything else. Some of us were fresh from the last summer vacation of our life, while others had spent a few weeks studying for the first part of the National Boards.

After a month of third year we discovered that medicine is a job that goes beyond classrooms and books. Surgery at Charity could make us set the alarm clock at 3:30 AM to finish notes before 6:30 rounds, and some medicine students were just beginning a 'full' morning of rounds. Other T-3's would be enjoying the relaxed atmosphere of private hospitals or even an out of town rotation at Huey P. Long.

Regardless of what rotation we happened to be on, there was always time for a strategically placed "we have lecture" to enjoy such events as Jazz fest, Lollapalooza or a sunny January day. Even though spread out over much of the city, our class still enjoyed a 'spirit' of unity through the fall 'Big Block Bash' and Mardi Gras Crawfish Boil at the levee.

After completing the 365 days of third year we came to realize that all the time deliberating about taking the big blocks or small blocks was useless. It was then time to take our weekend off and begin fourth year on Monday.

Votere e potere. (Italian proverb)

It is not the critic who counts, not the one who points out how the strong man stumbles or how the doer of good might have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred with sweat and dust and blood, who strives valiantly, who dares, again and again.

But on the whole the impression was neither of tragedy nor of comedy. There was no describing it. It was manifold and various; there were tears and laughter, happiness and woe; it was tedious and interesting and indifferent; it was as you saw it: it was tumultuous and passionate; it was grave; it was sad and comic; it was trivia; it was simple and complex; joy was there and despair; the love of mothers for their children, and of men for women; lust trailed itself through the rooms with leaden feet, punishing the guilty and the innocent, helpless wives and wretched children; drink seized men and women and cost its inevitable price; death sighed in these rooms; and the beginning of life, filling some poor girl with terror and shame, was diagnosed there. There was neither good nor bad there. There were just facts. It was life.

-W. Somerset Maugham

My thanks to Dr. Ferarra, Dr. Pisano, Dr. Newman, Rex, Dr. Moore, Dr. P. D. Walker, Dr. Dinh, all my residents and interns, and all the boys and girls.

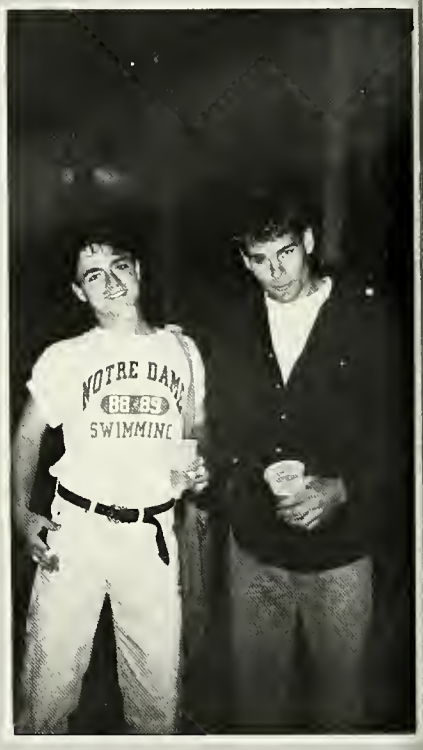
Proper Medical Attire in the Third World

Au revoir vieux carre.

What's up Doc?



Will the real Joe please step forward.

During the T-4 year, the Class of 1993 earned many frequent flier miles. After the hard work and on-call nights of third year, we thought we deserved a break. This was not the case. Soon, Tulane Medical School had representatives all over the country, working hard to impress residency directors on externships, or "auditions." Of course, the six week rotation in Jamaica remained popular throughout the year.

As externships wound down, the dreaded "interview season" began. Once again, our classmates could be found jet-setting across the country. This time taking our finest in interview attire, along with a firm handshake and a sincere smile.

Meanwhile at home, the Class of 1993 sponsored the 1992 Talent Show and raised over $900 to buy toys for the Charity Hospital Pediatric Clinic. Dr. Vincent Fulginiti, who joined Tulane along with our class, stepped down as Dean to move to the University of Colorado as their new Chancellor. Finally, we were all shocked and saddened by the sudden passing of Dr. W. Clifford Newman, the Associate Dean of Admissions and the man most responsible for bringing us together.

In December through February, the early match results began arriving and, once again, the Green Wave rolled on. This reached a zenith on March 17, 1993, when the majority of our class learned where we would spend the next three to six years of our lives.

Oh yeah, it's never too late to start studying for the FLEX. We hope.

If I had my life to live over, I'd try
To make more mistakes next time. I would
Relax, I would limber up, I would be crazier
Than I've been on this trip. I know very Few things I'd take seriously anymore.
I would take more chances, I would take more
Trips, I would scale more mountains,
I would swim more rivers, and I would
Watch more sunsets, I would eat more
Ice cream and fewer beans.
I would have more actual troubles
And fewer imaginary ones. You see...
I was one of those people who lived
Prophylactically and sensibly and sanely,
Hour after hour and day after day
Oh, I've had my moments
And if I had it to do all over
Again, I'd have many more of them
In fact, I'd try not to have anything
Else, just moments, one after another,
Instead of living so many Years ahead of living so many Years ahead of my day. I've been
One of those people who never went anywhere without
A thermometer, a hot water bottle, a gargle, a
Raincoat, and a parachute
If I had it to do all over again
I'd travel lighter, much lighter,
Than I have.
I would start barefoot earlier
In the spring, and I'd stay that way
Later in the fall. And I would Ride more merry-go-rounds, and
Catch more gold rings, and greet
More people, and pick more flowers,
And dance more often. If I had it
To do all over again.
But you see,
I don't.
Anonymous

It's a wild ride,
Nothing stays the same,
It's a wild ride,
It never will be tame...

You may begin to doubt
What you have undertaken.
Open your eyes and just look around,
The sun, the wind the sky,
You'll find your grief mistaken.

I'd like to thank my incredible family and friends for their love and support, for if it wasn't for them, I would have never gotten this far. Thanks also to the professors, residents, and interns of Tulane for their invaluable lessons of knowledge and learning. And to New Orleans; thanks for the memories and unforgettable moments during the past four years. Best of luck Class of 1993 - you are the greatest!

HEALING

To a distressed person who came to him for help the Master said, "Do you really want a cure?"

"If I did not, would I bother to come to you?"

"Oh yes. Most people do."

"What for?"

"Not for a cure. That's painful.
For relief."

To his disciples the Master said,
"People who want a cure, provided they can have it without pain, are like those who favor progress, provided they can have it without change."

Alpha Omega Alpha

Honor Medical Society

Vice-President

President

Secretary-Treasurer

Election to Alpha Omega Alpha is a distinction that accompanies a physician throughout his or her career. Especially for the young physician, the society provides a forum for the exchange of ideas, as well as a source of valuable contacts. Members can be elected as students, graduates, or faculty of an affiliated institution, or, because of distinguished achievement in any field, on an honorary basis. Elections in the first three categories are carried out by the individual chapters. Chapters elect undergraduate members from students in their last two years of medical school. Scholastic excellence is not the only criterion for election: integrity, capacity for leadership, compassion, and fairness in dealing with one's colleagues are considered to be of equal significance, and the number of students elected from any class may not exceed one-sixth of those expected to be graduated. The students elected to the society are men and women who, in the judgment of the local chapter, have shown promise of becoming leaders in their profession.

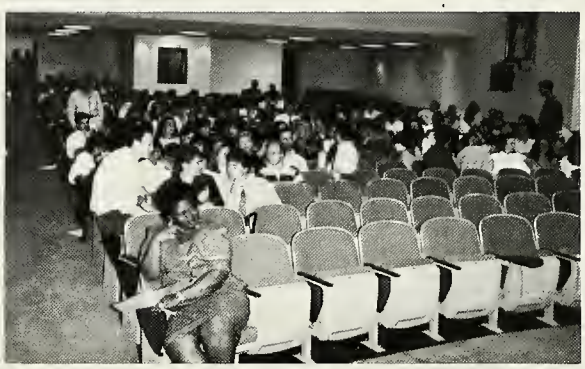
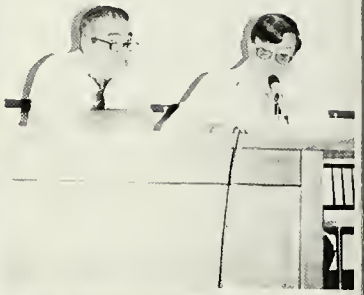
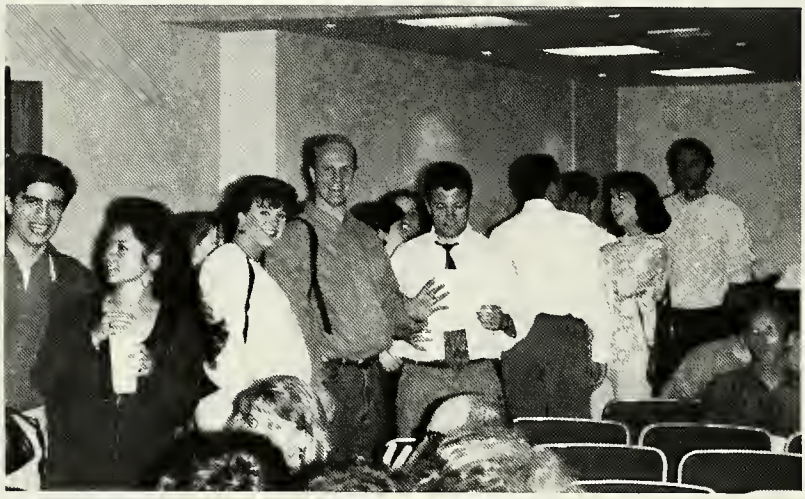
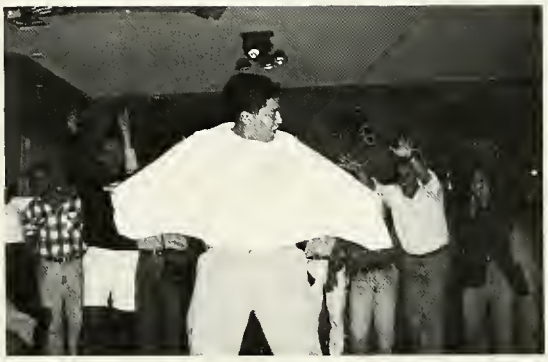
MATCH DAY-March 17, 1993









The Class Of 1993

The diversity of the graduating class of 1993 is reflected in the residency programs and medical specialties chosen. We will pursue our careers in 33 states and in 17 different specialties. The distribution is as follows: Internal medicine- 29; Surgery- 44 (General-21, ENT- 8, Orthopedics- 6, Urology- 7, Neurosurgery- 2); Pediatrics- 14; Obstetrics and Gynecology- 13; Family Medicine- 12; Psychiatry- 7; Radiology- 6; Ophthalmology- 6; Emergency Medicine- 6; Neurology- 3; Anesthesia- 3; and, 2 in Pathology and Medicine/Pediatrics.

Our future was declared on a typically overcast day in the New Orleans winter. Nervously, we filed into the auditorium at 10:30 a.m. On the stage, Drs. Pisano and Tomlinson sat behind a small stack of envelopes. Roll call began at 11:00 a.m. One by one, as hailed by Dr. Tomlinson, we filed towards the stage to obtain our envelope and our future. There was much cheering, jumping, and celebrating. Finally at 12:00 p.m. the class of 1993 had successfully completed Match Day 1993. It was the most successful Match since 1982. The class did very well with 90.5% matching into one of their top 3 programs. Of that percentage 71% obtained their first choice, 13% their second, and 6.5% their third.

Following the Match, the class of 1993 was invited to a party sponsored by the Alumni Association. Celebrations continued at Nick's Bar with much crawfish and beer, and went on into the "wee hours of morning" at Rosy's Big Easy Restaurant and Bar.

Hippocrates

The oath taken by the class on June 5, 1993:

The Oath Of Hippocrates

I swear by Apollo, the physician, the Aesculapius, and Health and All-Heal, and by God and by whatever I hold most sacred, that, according to my ability and judgment, I will keep this Oath and this stipulation — I will look upon those who shall have taught me this Art even as one of my parents.

I will share my substance with them, and I will supply their necessities if they be in need.

I will regard their offspring in the same footing as my own brethren, and I will teach them this art, if they shall wish to learn it, without fee or covenant.

I will impart a knowledge of the Art by precept, by lecture, and by every mode of teaching not only to my own children but to the children of those who have taught me, and to disciples bound by covenant and oath, according to the Law of Medicine, but to none other.

The regimen I adopt shall be for the benefit of my patients according to my ability and judgment and I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous.

I will seek to inform my patients fully about their illness and prognosis, and will always remember that the final decision regarding their own life rests with the patient.

I will regard my patients always as fellow human beings and will do everything possible to preserve their dignity.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my Art.

Whatsoever things I see or hear concerning the life of men in my attendance, on the sick or even apart therefrom, which ought not to be noised abroad, I will keep silence thereon, counting such things to be sacred secrets.

While I continue to keep this Oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the Art, respected by all men, in all times.

But should I trespass and violate this Oath, may the reverse be my lot.

Congratulations

Felicidades Elena, M.D.

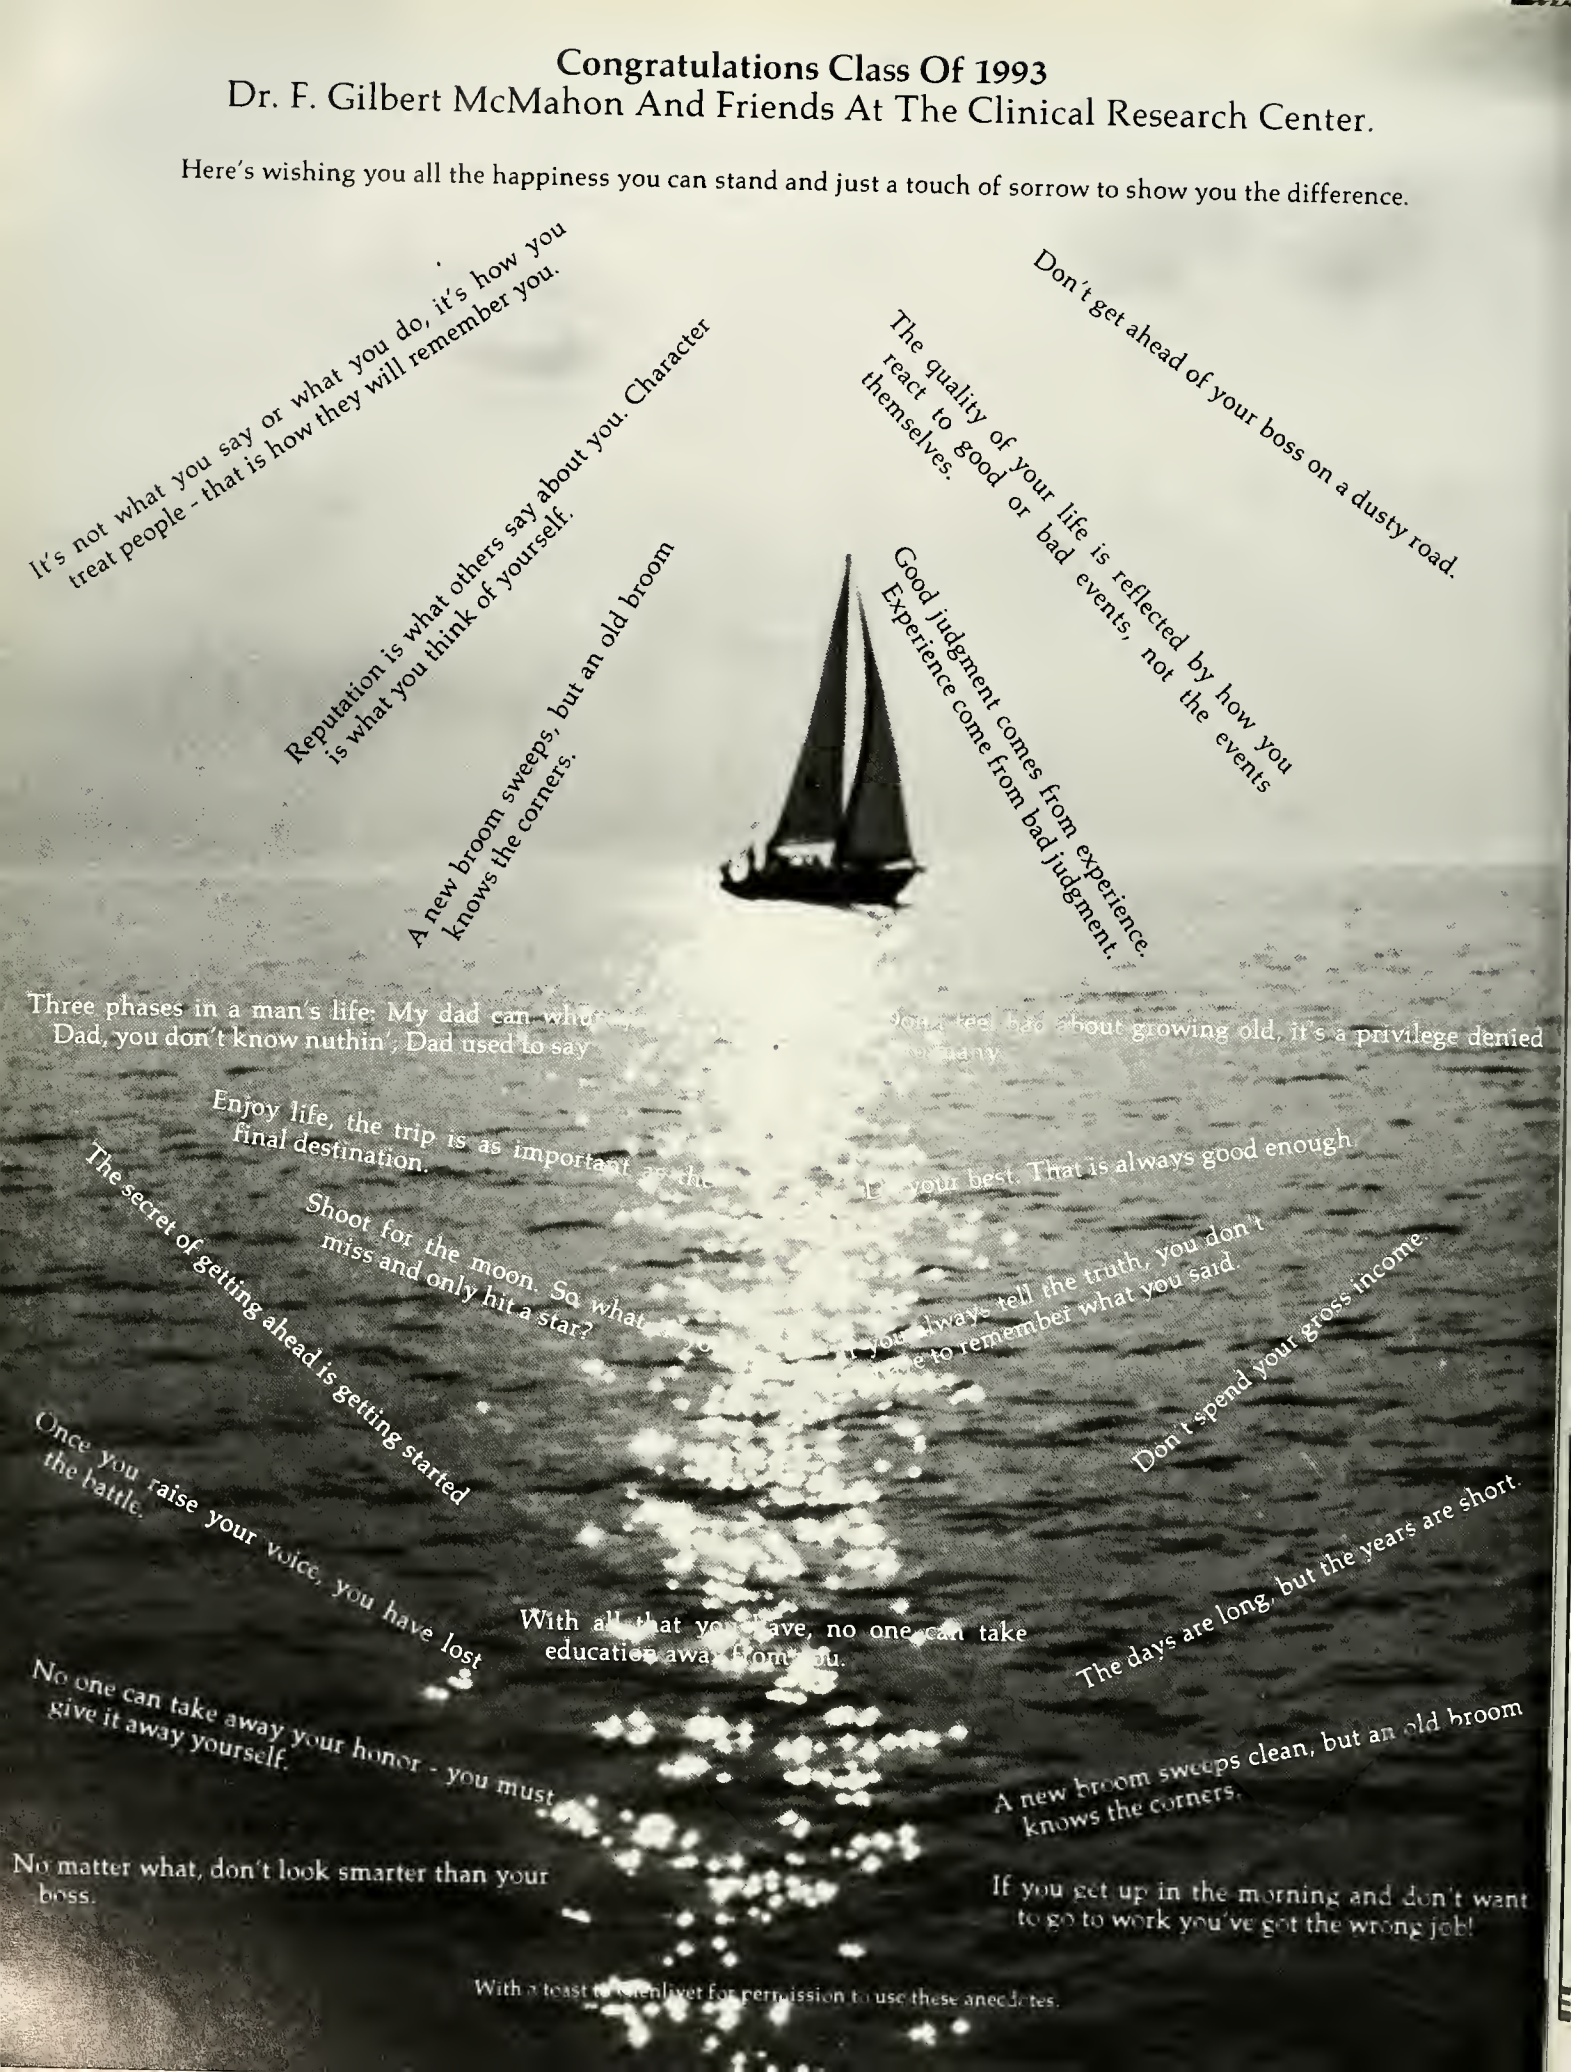
Dr. F. Gilbert McMahon And Friends At The Clinical Research Center.

Here's wishing you all the happiness you can stand and just a touch of sorrow to show you the difference.



It's not what you say or what you do, it's how you treat people - that is how they will remember you.

Reputation is what others say about you. Character is what you think of yourself.

A new broom sweeps, but an old broom knows the corners.

The quality of your life is reflected by how you react to good or bad events, not the events themselves.

Don't get ahead of your boss on a dusty road.

Good judgment comes from experience. Experience come from bad judgment.

Three phases in a man's life: My dad can whup ... Dad, you don't know nuthin', Dad used to say ...

... about growing old, it's a privilege denied ... many.

Enjoy life, the trip is as important as the ... final destination.

... your best. That is always good enough.

The secret of getting ahead is getting started.

Shoot for the moon. So what ... miss and only hit a star?

... always tell the truth, you don't ... to remember what you said.

Don't spend your gross income.

Once you raise your voice, you have lost the battle.

With all that you have, no one can take education away from you.

The days are long, but the years are short.

No one can take away your honor - you must give it away yourself.

A new broom sweeps clean, but an old broom knows the corners.

No matter what, don't look smarter than your boss.

If you get up in the morning and don't want to go to work you've got the wrong job!

With a toast to Glenlivet for permission to use these anecdotes.

CONGRATULATIONS GRADS

Children's Hospital congratulates the graduates of the Tulane University School of Medicine.

Many of you have completed clinical rotations at Children's Hospital in pediatrics, pediatric subspecialties, pediatric rehabilitative medicine, pediatric orthopaedics, pediatric surgery, pediatric surgical subspecialties, pediatric radiology and in a host of other areas. We have been delighted to have you be a part of Children's Hospital and to see how a union of the Children's Hospital with the private practicing community and its affiliate institutions, Tulane University and Louisiana State University, has made us a most dynamic and growing force in pediatric care in the State of Louisiana and the entire Gulf Coast area. We look forward to continued growth, and we are certain that many of you will be a part of that growth.

As your residencies and fellowships progress we hope that many of them will be done in part here and that we will have the opportunity to watch you grow professionally. We hope that you will be frequent visitors and learn of the resource of our Children's Hospital in the New Orleans and Louisiana community.

Congratulations for much happiness and fulfillment in the future.

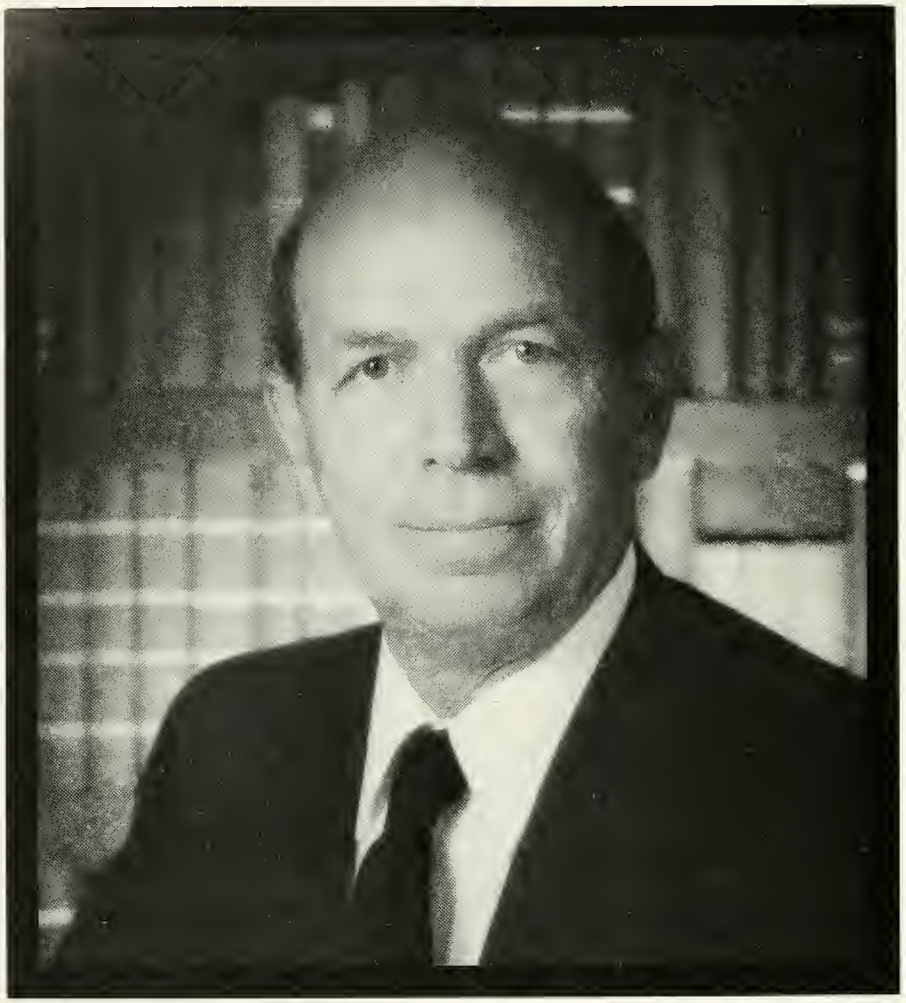
We Dedicate This Book To W. Clifford Newman, Jr., Ph.D.



Wiley Clifford Newman, Jr., Ph.D. 1931-1992

On December 31, 1992, respected dean, educator and friend Dr. Clifford Newman passed away peacefully in his sleep.

Dr. Newman's warm smile and sense of humor greeted us during our medical school interviews and continued to cheer us during the hardships of medical school. He treated us as peers, and we looked upon him for support and guidance.

When it came to helping those in need, Dr. Newman was always willing to participate. He helped the children of Charity Hospital by emceeing our talent shows. Whenever tragedy befell one of us, he was there to share our sorrow or give an encouraging word. He made it clear to us all that his advice was but a phone call away. Dr. Newman received numerous awards, including the distinguished Gloria P. Walsh Award for excellence in teaching and service to students.

Dr. Newman had a role in selecting every physician to graduate from Tulane over the past twenty years. He had an ability to take a pool of thousands of applicants and from it create a diverse and cohesive class. We, the members of the Class of 1993, are proud to have been brought together by a man we respected and grew to love.

Dr. Newman, we wish you were here to see us fulfill the dream you made possible. We thank you and dedicate our yearbook to you. May God Bless you Dr. Newman, our mentor and our friend.
